THE CITIZENS OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:1-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

Great and historic discourses are preserved with care and are read by succeeding generations with profit and interest even though they are recognized to be the utterances of weak and fallible men. The lesson before us presents what is "undoubtedly the greatest single discourse ever uttered by any teacher or statesman or philosopher in the whole history of the human race" (Smith). Take up your Bible and read the words of the text.

These verses are addressed to believers, to those who have actually taken Christ as King of their lives. These beatitudes are not a substitute for the gospel. They are not laws that the unbeliever can keep and thus be saved, for this would be utterly impossible for anyone to do, except the one who has been born again. Only he who knows and has called upon the power and grace of God in Christ can qualify to walk as a citizen of His kingdom.

I. The Christian's King (vv. 1, 2).

The words which fell from the blessed lips of the Lord Jesus on that day as He sat on the mountainside were not the powerless declarations of an earthly philosopher or statesman, but of the Son of God who had humbled Himself and become the Son of Man who was still the King of kings and the Lord of lords. If you have not given glad and free allegiance to Him, do it now and you will then be ready to go on and learn of the Christian's character and influence which may be your possession in Christ.

II. The Christian's Character (vv. 3-12).

The eight characteristics of the Christian here presented are worthy of extended individual attention, but we can offer only brief suggestions.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit" speaks of humility as a commendable quality. How contradictory the present-day philosophy which calls for self-assertion and self-reliance. But Jesus is not mistaken. The way into the kingdom of heaven is not that of assertive self-sufficiency.

"Blessed are they that mourn." The world does not believe that statement. It shuns the house of mourning. It tries without avail to philosophize away the fact of sorrow. The Christian, on the other hand, feels with his fellow man and shares generously a blessing.

"I walked a mile with Pleasure,
She chattered all the way;
But left me none the wiser
For all she had to say.

"I walked a mile with Sorrow,
And ne'er a word said she;
But, oh, the things I learned from her
When Sorrow walked with me.

"Blessed are the meek." Ah, yes, poverty of spirit comes when a man rightly sees himself, and has a sympathetic touch with sorrow. Then he "inherits the earth," because he truly comes to enjoy it as a place of service and Christian growth, and not because he has a deed to a single foot of its soil.

"Note that it is the hunger and thirst for righteousness, and not the possession of it, that is blessed" (Plummer). Self-satisfied people know nothing of the glory of having such a hunger and thirst filled by God.

Time fails us to speak of the Christian's spirit of mercy which invites divine mercy; that purity of heart and absolute cleanness of mind and sincerity of purpose which enable a man really to see God even in this impure world; that Christlike spirit which makes him a peacemaker in a fighting world—yes, that spirit which makes him like the Master in sweetly bearing unjustified persecution. These indeed are the marks of the man who follows Christ as King.

III. The Christian's Influence (vv. 13-16).

"Salt" and "light"! What pungent and powerful folk are the real followers of Christ!

Salt fights against rottenness, keeps things sweet and fresh. Dr. J. H. Jowett says, Christians "are to confront rottenness in politics; they are to meet it in the realm of business; they are to make for it in the field of sport; they are to be its enemies in the crowded streets of common intercourse; they are to defeat it in the quiet and sequestered ways of art and literature; everywhere they are to provide the antidote to corruption, and they are to overcome and destroy it."

Light has one function, namely, to illuminate. Wickedness and sin always love darkness, because their deeds are evil (read John 3:19-21). If Christ really dwells in us we cannot help but shed light about us wherever we go—a divine light which drives out the darkness of sin, of ignorance, of superstition, and replaces it with the sunlight of God.

Suffering Women Welcome "Build-Up"

A simple method is saving many women much pain and discomfort! It is based on the knowledge that women's headaches, nervousness, and cramp-like pain often are symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to a weak, run-down, underNourished condition. That so many women find relief from these painful symptoms through the CARDUI "build-up" is easy to explain. By improving the appetite, assisting digestion and assimilation, CARDUI helps to build physical resistance against periodic pain. Thousands of women also report that CARDUI, taken just before and during "the time," helps to ease periodic pain.

Asks Schools To Cooperate In Safety Effort

Richmond, Oct. 18.- In a letter to all school and college presidents of Virginia, Colonel M.S. Battle, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles, today asked that students and alumni refrain from using stickers on the windshields or the back-glasses of automobiles.

The director commented the cooperation given by schools and colleges last year and said the letter to-day was "merely a reminder."

"It is our sincere belief," Colonel Battle wrote, "that the use of stickers for football, increases the hazards of driving due to the obstruction to the drivers' view. We will appreciate it, therefore, if you will call this matter to the attention of your student body, for we can count on their cooperation in this important safety feature."

A similar request is also being forwarded to public school heads, their cooperation.

Many schools are using license plates as emblems," the director said, "and this is entirely safe and within the law as long as the school tags are not used to obliterate or conceal any part of the state or city tags."

Use of the sticker showing approved inspection, should be on the windshield.

Tourist Trade Is Worth Va. $88 Million!

Richmond, Oct. 18.- Tourist trade in Virginia during the present year ending June 30 this year was evaluated by the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce at $88,118.75. Business travel via motor was valued at $14,499,168.75.

Estimates prepared were based on the registration of cars of foreign licensed cars by the Virginia State Highway Planning Survey, conducted by the state police, and checked through the distribution at gasoline filling stations. More than 10,000 replies obtained for the first time, materially aid in the correct assessment of the value of the trade, include the percentage trade on pleasure, the percentage traveling on business, the number using each car and the length of stay in Virginia.

Two-thirds of the cars entering the state annually reported to the survey came on pleasure or business and pleasure combined, one-third came only on business. The pleasure traveler averages three persons per car, while cars on business only one and a half. From the annual traffic count Virginia highways, the Chamber ascertained that 1,513 tourist cars enter the state annually, while 966,611 cars use state annually on business.

Gasoline responses show that 71 per cent of all Virginia visitors used their destination in Virginia, and that only 51 per cent bought gas in hotels. More than a third of those filling in question-naires indicated that they were traveling with friends or relatives, 8.5 per cent stopped in tourist homes, 3 per cent in tourist camps and 1 per cent in trailers. Expenditures were estimated by the Chamber at $5 per head to measure visitors and $8.50 for automobiles, an estimate below the figures used in similar compilations.

The 10,000 filling in questionnaires, 12.68 per cent were from North Carolina, 11.93 per cent from the District of Columbia, 10.64 per cent from New York, 9.19 per cent from Pennsylvania and 8.51 per cent from Maryland. Other states, in the order of the number of visitors to Virginia, were West Virginia, New Jersey, Tennessee, Ohio, Massachusetts, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky; Illinois, Connecticut, South Carolina, Michigan and Texas. The other states had less than 1 per cent of the total number.

The foreign licensed car contributed more than 12 per cent of the total gas taxes of the state, the High way Planning Survey study shows. The average mileage driven by a visitor to Virginia was 243 miles in the state.

New Chevrolets Being Shown

Detroit, October 14.- Three completely re-styled series of Chevrolet passenger cars, slightly greater length and width with much more massive appearance, and embodying many mechanical refinements, made their formal public bow today at the National Automobile Show and by Chevrolet dealers' salesrooms from coast to coast. Over-all length has been increased 4 3/4 inches, a change which makes the new cars outstanding for its sleekness and grace.

Improvements, aside from styling, in which sweeping changes are made, include power-action of Chevrolet's exclusive vacuum power shift as regular equipment on all models of all three series, a helical synco-mesh transmission with silent low and reverse as well as silent intermediate and high, and numerous revisions affecting ease of comfort, convenience, performance and safety. Knee-action and shockless steering are features on the Special De Luxe and Master De Luxe series, conventional I-beam front axle with semi-elliptic springs and airplane-type shock absorbers being retained on the Master 85.

Except for the difference in front suspension and the use of a slightly higher gear ratio on the Master 85, chassis of the three series are practically identical. All are of the same wheelbase, and the power plant is the same throughout. It is the valve-in-head engine, revised in several particulars in the interest of silent operation, smoothness and long life. These changes affect the oil system, the valve mechanism, and the camshaft, and in the two latter cases involve change in manufacturing practice as well as in design.

In appearance, the 1940 Chevrolet is new from bumper to bumper. Bodies, fenders, hood, and frame are completely re-designed, to embody low-slung grace. These changes result also in increased stability, since they lower the center of gravity of the car as a whole. Changes, except for trim and extra equipment, are the same on all three series.

The radiator grille, one of the most obvious outward changes, is much lower and wider. The massive chrome-plated horizontal bars at the lower port of this unit sweep outward to include the fender area formerly occupied by auxiliary louvers. The alligator-jaw type hood has a deep, gracefully-rounded nose, and is designed in such a way that the line along which it opens is unnoticeable when the hood is closed. The hood is equipped with a theft-proof lock so that access to the engine compartment can be gained only after releasing a control knob under the dash with the car. Releasing of the latter allows the hood's spring-loaded hinges to raise the nose, giving access to a secondary lock which releases it the rest of the way. This secondary lock prevents the hood from being jarred or blown open while the car is in motion, even if the dash lock should be accidentally released.

Front fenders are longer, wider, and deeper, and sweep inward from the crown to the sides of the hood in an almost horizontal plane, without valleys. Streamlined headlamps nearly 20 inches long, are nestled in the fenders at locations almost 10 inches farther apart than mounting makes for maximum illumination, as well as full protection for the lamps, and easy access for servicing. The new sealed beam headlamp units combining lamp, reflector and scientifically-designed lens are used on all models. Parking lamps are mounted between headlamp and outer edge of fender.

Small Proportion of Highways Carry Bulk of Road Traffic

Richmond, Oct. 18.- A relatively small proportion of Virginia's highway system today is carrying the bulk of all traffic on Virginia highways, according to Marion Marye, of the Virginia Highway Planning Survey, writing in the current issue of Virginia Business, publication of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

The heavy-duty roads in Virginia, comprising only 16 per cent of the total mileage of the Virginia system, both primary and secondary, carry 79 per cent of the total rural traffic and an even greater proportion of tourist and heavy-duty commercial traffic, Mr. Marye reports.

"The urban resident performs on the heavy-duty roads 84 per cent of all his driving outside of corporate limits and the rural resident performs 68 per cent of his driving on them," Mr. Marye writes.

"As a result of the great preponderance of traffic in them and the necessity of spreading available funds thinly over a vast total mileage, these roads are inadequate in facilities deemed necessary by both motorist and the highway engineer. Thousands of miles surfaced in the past to 'get the people out of the mud,' miles which were fully adequate for light, slow-moving vehicles, are now obsolete or rapidly becoming so."

Woodland Pays Nottoway Farmer

Following definite woodland management practices proved profitable both cash and trees for Paul Fitzgerald, owner of a 513 acre dairy farm near Crewe.

Mr. Fitzgerald wanted to see the timber on a 20-acre block of pine ly woodland. He got a lump-sum offer for all the timber down to six inches on the stump, which is the usual method of selling in this section.

Inasmuch as the conservation plan for his farm worked out by Soil Conservation Service technicians in the CCC Camp area near Crewe provided for conservative woodland cuttings, he got in touch with the camp forester in regard to his offer.

After walking over the 20-acres, he and the forester decided to mark the trees to be cut and sell them by the thousand board feet, instead of by the lump sum. As Mr. Fitzgerald did not have the labor and equipment to handle the job himself, it was necessary to sell the trees on the stump.

In marking the timber to be cut, Mr. Fitzgerald left all the sound trees under 12 inches in diameter to continue growth and to produce seed. In this way a continuous stand of trees will be assured on the 20-acre tract, which is not suitable for cultivation.

After the cutting and he had been paid, he found that he had $55 more than the original lump-sum offer and still had a good stand or trees to protect the soil and timber for the next crop. By cleaning up tops and brush, this fall, new growth will be had, he expects to get about 10 cords of wood which will be suitable for fuel and pulp.

It Pays To Fertilize Wheat

Blacksburg, Oct. 17.- When fall's first killing frost comes along, it is time to plant wheat, and H. H. Byrne, agronomist, Virginia Agricultural Extension Division, sends along the reminder that it pays to fertilize wheat.

He lists four reasons for saying this: (1) It increases the yield and decreases its cost; (2) it is a good insurance against winter killing; (3) it aids in producing a crop of higher quality; and (4) it benefits the clover and grass which follow in the rotation.

Experiments show that increased yield of hay following fertilized wheat often more than pay the cost of fertilization.

The amount and kind of fertilizer to use depends, of course, on the type of soil and what it has been used for. Where wheat follows a heavily fertilized crop, such as tobacco or potatoes, Byrne says that little or no fertilizer may be left off entirely. In general crop rotations, however, liberal fertilization of wheat will pay good dividends. Here is a good rule to follow, Byrne says: spend at least 10 per cent of the prospective value of the crop in fertilizer. If you anticipate $20 worth of wheat and straw per acre, use $2 worth of fertilizer.

For Virginia soils on which good rotations have kept up the nitrogen and organic supply, the agronomists recommend using 200 to 400 pounds of 0-14-6 fertilizer per acre. For thin lands or lands which have not been in rotations, a complete fertilizer, as 5—12—4 or 2—12—6, is best. Where manure is used, 20 per cent superphosphate may be used in place of the balanced fertilizer.

Wheat to be grazed during winter should be given a more liberal amount of nitrogen than that not grazed. Where wheat is heavily grazed, or is on thin land, Byrne recommends a top dressing in spring with a quickly available nitrogen fertilizer.

Colonel Battle Calls Attention To New Auto Stickers

Richmond, Oct. 18.- In hopes of avoiding a last minute rush in approved stations for inspection stickers, Colonel M. S. Battle, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles, today asked motorists to have their cars checked as soon as possible.

According to reports from the approved stations throughout the state, the director said, motorists are not having their cars inspected, but are waiting for the last week.

"There will be no extension of time for the inspection period," Colonel Battle said. "Motorists must have the new sticker before they can drive after October 31. In order to avoid the last minute rush and the possibility of some persons being deprived of the use of their automobiles for the first several days of November, I urge all owners of vehicles to take their cars to the approved stations as soon as possible."

The semi-annual inspection of motor vehicles is a safety measure to insure motorists of safe vehicles, the director added.

More than 450,000 vehicles must be inspected during the month at the 1,250 approved stations. A check for stickers will start November 1 by State Troopers, the director said.

Every motor vehicle in the state must bear the inspection sticker before it can be operated after October 31.

MILLIONS suffer less from Headache, Acid Indigestion, Distress after Colds "Morning After" and Muscular Fatigue because they have heard—and believed—Alka-Seltzer radio announcements.
To these millions, the relief obtained by the use of Alka-Seltzer is worth far more than the genuine enjoyment they get from the broadcasts.
The most important parts of our radio program, both to you and to us, are the commercial announcements. Once you have tried Alka-Seltzer we believe you will agree with us.
But try Alka-Seltzer because it is an unusually effective medicine not because you enjoy the radio programs.
WHY ALKA-SELTZER IS SO EFFECTIVE
The pain-relieving analgesic in Alka-Seltzer is in complete solution, ready to ease the distress as soon as you swallow it. The pain-relieving action is made more effective by alkaline buffers.
The alkalizing elements in Alka-Seltzer reduce excess stomach acidity.
